I really enjoyed Blandine Waldmann's single "LISZT Consolation S.172 Nr.2". Opting for a classical piece as a single already shows interesting care. The piano performance is precise and felt, managing to balance the lightness of the high notes with the emotional depth the melody requires. It's a version that sounds both respectful and personal, perfect for a pause in the urban rush. I decided to promote it because I believe its purity and simple beauty can offer a much-needed moment of tranquility for our listeners, working both for those who appreciate classical music and those seeking a serene sound in daily life. The track has an intimate quality that truly invites reflection. Keep the flow! After its release, we will include your song in our radio show "Noitinha Cool"
